BIOGRAPHY

The through-line is the same in every discipline: find the true thing, say it plainly, and make it beautiful enough that people stop. That applies to a campaign line, an annual report, a corporate positioning exercise, and a photograph made at five in the morning in a place far from home.

Photography began as a way to see, then became a body of published work in its own right — travel and documentary images made on assignment and on the road across six continents.

DISCIPLINES

Creative direction

Setting the idea, the tone and the standard — then holding the line through production.

Art direction & copywriting

Words and images made in the same breath, for print, film, outdoor and digital.

Communications counsel

Senior consulting for organisations that need to be understood, not just seen.

Travel photography

Original photography from six continents, published worldwide.
